CMS Scraps Contracts To Upgrade Online Medicare system And Hands Over Control To DOGE, Agency Says

By: Noha Tong as seen in Fierce Healthcare

Contractors working to modernize a provider enrollment system have been shown the door, the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) announced.

Instead, CMS will work with the highly influential advisory group Department of Government Efficiency (DOGE) to complete a system overhaul that will be far less costly and time-consuming, the agency said.

"Two contractors spent nine years and $200M working on a modern provider enrollment system at CMS," the agency said in an X post. "After 14 missed deadlines, zero usable output was produced. CMS has now cancelled these two contracts (saving $17.8M annually), has hired multiple software engineers, and, working with DOGE, are accelerating this project."

As of March 12, DOGE's wall of receipts highlighting terminated contracts did not include the contracts mentioned by CMS in the post. The website was last updated March 11 and is supposed to be refreshed weekly.

The online Medicare enrollment system PECOS, or Provider Enrollment, Chain and Ownership System, is likely the system targeted by DOGE in this instance, Fierce Healthcare has learned. PECOS was established as the central electronic system to process payments for every physician accepting Medicare and indicates whether providers are eligible to be paid out in Medicare

CMS has long promised to modernize the system, which frustrates providers and companies in the space, by implementing PECOS
